Shannon Building. Telephone 134-3.

Struggling nobly, muscles swelling,
Strained the horses at the load;
Lash applying, curses yelling.
Raged the driver in the road;
Still resisting gainst campelling.
In the slough the wheels abode.
Then a voice came, clear and thrilling,
Reason's fountain to anseal.
And the load, so long unwilling,
Answered to the new appeal.
Thus the voice, the clamor stilling.
"Why the air with curses filling."
Pray you may, but ere you kneel.
Put your shoulder to the wheel!"

TO RENT -Cottage house No. 10 Kin-ey Ave., all mouern improvements. nquire J. F. Tompkins, 67 West Main sep12d As reverberating thunder
Through creation's deeps may roll.
Then this thought of fear and wonder
Through my senses strangely stole:
From the dark and distant yonder.
This a message to thy soul!
And my heart beat loud and faster
As my sinews set to steel
To avert the Great Disester.
Thus I read the message leal:
Banish force, love's sway is vaster;
Heed the spirit of the Master:
Pray you may, but ere you kneel
Put your shoulder to the wheel!

Take your foot into your hand,
Roll along the floor,
Flopping sidewise while I count
One, two, three, and four,
Boost your partner on your back,
Waltz him on the run,
Twirl upon your thumbs, and stop;
So the lesson's done,
—Minna Irving.
